Bishops in running for charity race

SCOTS FAN JOE

MARKS 70 YEARS OF FRENCH CLASSIC

Joe and William Nixon to launch SCIAF’s 6k Family Affair run in Glasgow’s west end, daily May to June.

The run takes place at Strathclyde Park in Motherwell.

JOE’s forecast

We made it all the way to Yugoslavia. A friend said we’d be lucky to reach Beattock.

Joe said: “The high vehicles behind you couldn’t see you were indicating. In the days of manual gearboxes, you had to wave your arms.”

Extra Expiry dates could be axed

A PATCH which detects when food goes off has been developed by scientists. It could help prevent food waste and expiry dates currently used by products.

Up to half price on all spring collection

Find your happy colour

Happen in running for charity race

Joe went to see a second-hand 2CV. It was the 1981 model he liked, and he bought it for £500. "You can raise money to help people and thrive and show solidarity with people fleeing conflict around the world.”

Joe said: “The high vehicles behind you couldn’t see you were indicating. In the days of manual gearboxes, you had to wave your arms.”

The domed roof meant a tall driver would have a limited field of vision. He had the roof taken off his latest 2CV.

The ear by the local blacksmith.

Joe’s 2CV was designed for French peasants in the 1940s and are starting to go up in price. Today, a late 1980s model could make a car like that - and then sell it to the British. The last 2CVs were manufactured in 1990.

You won’t catch me without a 2CV

Joe would return for a test drive. Joe said: “I’d have to go on to it said we’d be lucky to make it, although the friend who first put us on to it said we’d be lucky to get there.”

Joe said: “The high vehicles behind you couldn’t see you were indicating. In the days of manual gearboxes, you had to wave your arms.”

Testing a 2CV in 1948

W

“Even in France they’re rare,” said Joe. The early 2CVs were quite expensive. "A pal suggested a Citroen. Joe said: “I’d need a second-hand 2CV. My friend had a maroon one with a plush interior. Joe went to see a second-hand 2CV. It was the 1981 model he liked, and he bought it for £500. "You can raise money to help people and thrive and show solidarity with people fleeing conflict around the world.”

Joe said: “The high vehicles behind you couldn’t see you were indicating. In the days of manual gearboxes, you had to wave your arms.”

The domed roof meant a tall driver would have a limited field of vision. He had the roof taken off his latest 2CV.

The ear by the local blacksmith.

Joe’s 2CV was designed for French peasants in the 1940s and are starting to go up in price. Today, a late 1980s model could make a car like that - and then sell it to the British. The last 2CVs were manufactured in 1990.

You won’t catch me without a 2CV

Joe would return for a test drive. Joe said: “I’d have to go on to it said we’d be lucky to make it, although the friend who first put us on to it said we’d be lucky to get there.”

Joe said: “The high vehicles behind you couldn’t see you were indicating. In the days of manual gearboxes, you had to wave your arms.”

Testing a 2CV in 1948

When Joe went to see a second-hand 2CV, it was a 1981 model he liked, and he bought it for £500. "You can raise money to help people and thrive and show solidarity with people fleeing conflict around the world.”

Joe said: “The high vehicles behind you couldn’t see you were indicating. In the days of manual gearboxes, you had to wave your arms.”

The domed roof meant a tall driver would have a limited field of vision. He had the roof taken off his latest 2CV.

The ear by the local blacksmith.

Joe’s 2CV was designed for French peasants in the 1940s and are starting to go up in price. Today, a late 1980s model could make a car like that - and then sell it to the British. The last 2CVs were manufactured in 1990.

You won’t catch me without a 2CV

Joe would return for a test drive. Joe said: “I’d have to go on to it said we’d be lucky to make it, although the friend who first put us on to it said we’d be lucky to get there.”

Joe said: “The high vehicles behind you couldn’t see you were indicating. In the days of manual gearboxes, you had to wave your arms.”

The domed roof meant a tall driver would have a limited field of vision. He had the roof taken off his latest 2CV.

The ear by the local blacksmith.

Joe’s 2CV was designed for French peasants in the 1940s and are starting to go up in price. Today, a late 1980s model could make a car like that - and then sell it to the British. The last 2CVs were manufactured in 1990.